Chicago Thinks Hoover Going Too Far
How Civilized Are We?
Dying Out

BY ARTHUR BRISBANE

THIS is written in Chicago, where we HOPE Governor Lowden will be nominated, but BELIEVE Hoover will be the Republican nominee. Experienced politicians especially believe

As to Governor Smith, his nomination is a fact. Well-informed men in Chicago, including many NOT Democrats, believe that it will be hard to beat him.

JAPANESE troops raid a missionary school with the United States flag on it, take the Chinese Christian teachers and Chinese students to jail.

They care about as Americans or Europeans would act if they found Chinese or Japanese teaching their religion to Confucius.

IN Niagara Falls, Jacob D. Hanson, secretary of the Elks Lodge, was driving on the Lewiston high road at night when three men not in uniform ordered him to stop. He thought they were highwaymen, and drove on to escape attack.

But they were federal prohibition officers and shot him through the head, making him for life. He may die.

• • •

THE grand exalted ruler of Elks sent word from Boston that Elks going about their business legally—Mr. Hanson had no alcohol in his automobile—should not be shot and blinded, and "a fuss must be made." It was made. 5,000 protested, in mass meeting.

It is fortunate that Mr. Hanson happened to be an Elk with a grand exalted ruler back of him, otherwise little would have been heard about his shooting and blinding.

WE have prohibition with us, and it is going to stay.

The looting and crime waves that come with it are bad enough. Shooting the thirsty in the head is going too far. Wouldn't it be a good idea for federal agents to make sure that a man is a bootlegger before shooting him?

• • •

WHAT is our civilization, apart from an artificial picture that we paint to flatter ourselves? What would it look like seen as it really is?

This country, for instance, spends half as much for education as it does for cigarets. The other day in New York City five gunmen abandoned an automobile with many thousands of cigarets stolen. Policemen pursued them and the crowd that gathered promptly set to steal the money that the gunmen had left in the automobile, each grabbing for his share of it.

HOW many of us are law-abiding citizens because we are afraid to be crooks, or because we think the crooks business is unprofitable? Often it is.

DR. HUNTINGTON of Yale recently announced in the Yale Review: "The upper classes in the United States are dying out."

That's bad enough, if you happen to know what the upper classes ARE. The lower classes are not dying out, but threaten to swamp the upper classes completely. That's really serious.

It would be too bad to have such men as Abraham Lincoln, Clemenceau, Lloyd George, and similar lower-class types dominate the earth.

DALE LUTZ IS ARRESTED BY SHERIFF ULMER

Says He Burned Own Barn and That on Yeagly Farm

NO REASON FOR ACT

Structure on Coulter Farm Destroyed by Blaze Early Today

Bucyrus, May 17—Dale Lutz, 37, farmer, residing near here, today confessed to setting fire to his own barn and the barn on the Yeagly farm which burned a few weeks ago, following his arrest last night by Sheriff Harvey Ulmer and Detective Sachs of Columbus.

A charge of arson probably will be placed against him.

Lutz lived in the zone just south of Bucyrus in which six barns were mysteriously burned within the past several weeks, involving a loss of approximately $30,000. The sixth barn burned this morning, some hours after the imprisonment of Lutz. Authorities, it was stated, were investigating in an effort to determine what connection, if any, Lutz had with the destruction of these barns and whether he had any accomplices.

The barns, all said to have been insured in the same company, were within about four miles of Bucyrus in the vicinity of the Columbus-pk. One of the destroyed barns belonged to Attorney F. S. Monnett, Columbus, former attorney general of Ohio, it was stated.

Discovery of a can of pork and beans by a reporter in one of the barns which escaped destruction led to the arrest of Lutz, it was announced. The can was turned over to Sheriff Harvey D. Ulmer who, cooperating with O. E. Sachs, Columbus detective, and other representatives of the insurance company, traced the can to the store at which it was claimed Lutz purchased it.

Lutz also admitted having carried the cans of oil and placing them in the mangers at the Widemire barn, near his home, to setting fire to a shed on his own farm which burned about four and one-half years ago, and to writing the anonymous letters which he claimed to have received several years ago, and which caused considerable excitement in the neighborhood at the time.

Lutz denies any knowledge of the other fires which have occurred in the vicinity of Bucyrus, and refuses to give any reason for his act. He is held in the County Jail.

Another fire of undetermined origin burned the barn on the Coulter farm about one mile east of Bucyrus about 6:30 o'clock this morning. Members of the Coulter family were in the barn about 5:30 o'clock this morning doing their chores and at 6:30 o'clock when they returned to complete their work, found the place in flames. No estimate was placed on the loss.

TWO MEN ARE GIVEN REFORMATORY TERMS

Pair Taken Here in Spectacular Capture Sentenced at Urbana

Harry Evilsizor, 21, of Urbana, and James Sparks, 24, of Lowell, Mass., who were taken in a spectacular capture in Marion Feb. 5, will serve time in the Mansfield reformatory on an automobile theft charge. They were sentenced to the state institution yesterday by Judge W. P. Middleton of Champaign County after they pleaded guilty before him in Common Pleas Court at Urbana. They had previously pleaded not guilty.

The two men were captured on W. Center-st, Feb. 5, by Herman Irey, special deputy sheriff, and Claude Werts, city police sergeant, after local officers had been notified that they were enroute to Marion from Urbana in a stolen automobile.

The pair at first showed fight but were subdued when Irey jumped into their machine, kicked a revolver out of one man's hand and then steered the car into a telephone post.

They were the source of considerable worry and trouble for Champaign County officers while in jail at Urbana. Sparks was injured in a fall from his cell to the floor below and later he and his pal were apprehended in an attempted escape, two bars of their cell having been sawed off. After the attempted escape, they were placed in solitary confinement.

QUIZ SUSPECTS IN KIDNAPING OF LITTLE GIRL

Youngstown Child, 10 Years Old, Gone Since Monday Morning

Youngstown, May 17—Despite their denial of all knowledge of the mysterious disappearance of 10-year-old Beatrice Rosenbaum from her home here May 14, three suspects were to be questioned again today by local police and the three persons who said they saw Beatrice enter an automobile Monday morning were to be brought to police headquarters here to look over the trio.

Mrs. W. C. Vangorder and Mrs. G. Kelly, next door neighbors of the Rosenbaums, declare they saw a car drive up in front of the Rosenbaum residence, pick up the child and drive away.

Several searching parties including police, boy scouts and citizens were still continuing their search for the missing child.

Max B. Rosenbaum, father of Beatrice, told police of a mysterious telephone call last night telling him that a light was burning in a vacant house on Lincoln-st. Police rushed to the address and found nothing.

Rosenbaum says he has no enemies and no money and can see no reason why his child "be taken from him."

Lorain, May 17—A liquor manufacturing plant, believed to be the largest ever uncovered in Lorain County was today in possession of local authorities, and John Hall and Charles Cibles, both of Lorain, were under arrest charged with possessing liquor.

Two 50 gallon stills, 2,800 gallons of mash, 30 gallons of alleged whisky and hundreds of pounds of sugar and grain were confiscated, police said.

Federal Workers Are Voted Increase By Senate

WASHINGTON, May 17—Pay increase legislation for 755,000 federal workers—45,000 of whom are in the Washington departments—soon will be written upon the statute books.

The Senate last night passed a bill which adds at least $70,000,000 to the present salaries of government employes. The vote was 48 to 0.

The Welch-Brookhart bill now goes to conference with the House which passed a bill carrying lesser increases.

CLEANUP WEEK DATES SET BY MAYOR HAZEN

Next Monday Designated for Opening: Citizens Asked To Co-Operate

ANNUAL EVENT

Trucks of Municipal Garbage Department To Be in Service

Next week, beginning May 21, will be observed as annual "Cleanup Week" in Marion.

In a statement issued yesterday, Mayor Earl Hazen formally announced setting aside of the period as "Cleanup Week" and urged that all citizens cooperate by cleaning yards and alleyways and placing the collections of rubbish at points where it can easily be reached by drivers of the city's trucks and wagons.

Persons who are not regular patrons of the city collection service will be required to pay a small fee for having their rubbish taken away by the city wagons, while those in the service will not be assessed any additional cost unless they have an unusually large amount of hauling to be done.

Plan for Removal

Removal of rubbish by the city trucks will not be compulsory, the mayor explained. Persons not included in the list of regular city service patrons are at liberty to have their hauling done by any one. Those who do desire service of the city are requested to call phone number 7356, the garbage collection department.

As has been the case in the last year there will be no general collection. Persons not in the city service who want hauling done by the city conveniences will be required to notify the garbage collection department.

"With the weather becoming warmer, fires have been discontinued in furnaces and stoves and we believe this will be the most satisfactory time for a general cleanup," the mayor said.

CUYAHOGA JURY TO INVESTIGATE BRIBERY

Former Cleveland Mayor Charges Policeman Paid for Promotion

Cleveland, May 17—The Cuyahoga County grand jury was to start investigation today into the charge of former Mayor Clayton C. Townes, that a police captain told him that the officer paid $500 for promotion.

Towns, Safety Director Edwin D. Barry, Chief of Police Jacob Graul and all 21 of Cleveland's police captains have been subpenaed to appear before the grand jury this morning.

Whether Townes will give the grand jury the name of the police captain who is alleged to have paid the $500, was a matter of conjecture, it was said.

When the police officer told Townes of the alleged bribery, Townes said he promised the officer not to tell who he was. The police captain has not released Townes from his pledge, the former Cleveland mayor declared.

OPERATORS SEE END OF STRIKE IN OHIO FIELD

Train Load of Workers Sent to Caldwell To Open Coal Mines

OTHERS TO FOLLOW

Union Officials Brand Reports as "All Bunk;" Say Union Backed

Cambridge, May 17—"The end of the Ohio coal strike." This was the optimistic outlook of the coal operators in this vicinity today following the dispatching of a train load of workers to Caldwell yesterday to open up the mines in that locality.

With the opening of mines in Noble County, coal operators will follow suit in Guernsey County, they said. The result of this, the operators said, will be that this Muskingum Valley coal district, one of the richest in Ohio, will soon be operating on normal basis, producing the six million tons of coal per year that was formerly produced in this subdistrict.

The Muskingum Valley coal field, or the Cambridge subdistrict, composes Washington, Guernsey, Noble, Coshocton, Muskingum, Morgan Counties and the low coal field of Perry County.

In view of the recent freight reduction of lake shipments of coal this field, operators say, can successfully compete with the West Virginia and Pennsylvania coal fields.

The Akron Coal Co., the Cambridge Collieries Co., the Forsythe Coal Co. and the Morris Coal Co. are the four largest coal companies in this field. The Cambridge Collieries Company's mines are protected by federal injunction. The Morris and Forsythe Companies' mines are protected by injunctions issued by the county courts.

DENIES REPORTS

Union Officials Say Reports of Strike Is "Bunk."

Columbus, May 17 — United Mine Workers officials here this morning branded the reports that the mine strike was practically ended in the St. Clairsville and Muskingum Valley coal fields as "all bunk." The union officials said that the miners were solidly behind the union in both of these fields. C. W. Savage, union secretary, refused to comment on the stand taken by Oral Daugherty, deposed Athens subdistrict leader, in the St. Clairsville situation.

COUNCIL GETS DEFINITE WORD FROM C., D. & M.

BUSES NOW CERTAIN

Threat of Refusing Interurban Grant Fails To Alarm Traction Representatives

Any doubt in the minds of members of City Council as to discontinuance of the city street car service after expiration of the present franchise on Oct. 5 was definitely removed at the meeting of members of Council and C., D. & M. officials held in the office of Mayor Hazen, last night, when it was emphatically announced by the C., D. & M. representatives that if there are any city cars run here after Oct. 5, some other company will operate them.

The threat of refusing the company right of operating interurban cars if the city lines are discontinued, which had been made by several of the councilmen, proved a poor club at the meeting last night.

In response to a statement by Councilman Wilkins, that unless the company continues to run the city cars council might deny it the right to operate the interurban service, President A. F. Van Deinse of the C., D. & M. said the action would be most welcome on the part of the company.

"We would be only too glad to discontinue the interurban service and would welcome some such action on the part of the city, as it might provide an urgently wanted opportunity to induce the Public Utilities Commission to grant the company the right to suspend the lines."

The interurban at the present time, it was pointed out by Mr. Van Deinse, is undesirable as the city lines from the company's standpoint, but since the road is under control of the Public Utilities Commission, it cannot be abandoned without permission from that body.

Law Clear, Geran Says

City Solicitor George Geran, who was present at the meeting last night, said this morning the law is perfectly clear in the matter of operation of the interurban line. The road is controlled entirely by the Public Utilities Commission and before it can be suspended, application must be made to the commission either by the city or the company itself.

At a hearing held before the commission it must be proven that the discontinuance of the road will not interfere with the welfare of those living in the vicinity of the route, before permission will be granted for discontinuance.

FLORENCE E. ALLEN SEEKING REELECTION

Woman Member of Ohio Supreme Court After Nomination by Petition

Columbus, May 17—Formal announcement was made here today by Judge Florence E. Allen, Cleveland, of her candidacy for reelection as a member of the Ohio Supreme Court.

She stated that it is upon her record as a state supreme judge that she is asking for the support of her friends for election to a second term.

"Believing that the judiciary should be strictly non-partisan, I have always sought nomination by petition in my judicial campaigns and I shall follow the same course this year," Judge Allen declared.

"The executive committee of the Cleveland Bar Association last year recommended that all judicial candidates secure their nomination by petition and that they should not solicit contributions from lawyers," Judge Allen continued. "I have always believed in these polices as applied to judicial candidates and have carried them out in my former judicial campaigns."

Dr. Caldwell's 3 Rules Keep You Healthy

Dr. Caldwell watched the results of constipation for 47 years, and believed that no matter how careful people are about health, diet and exercise, constipation will occur from time to time regardless of how much one tries to avoid it. Of next importance, then, is how to treat it when it comes. Dr. Caldwell always was in favor of getting as close to nature as possible, so his remedy for constipation known as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a mild vegetable compound. It can not upset the most delicate system and is not a habit forming preparation. Syrup Pepsin is pleasant-tasting, and youngsters love it. It does not gripe. Thousands of mothers have written us to that effect.

Dr. B. Caldwell M.D.
AT AGE 83

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. In a practice of 47 years he never saw any reason for their use when a medicine like Syrup Pepsin will empty the bowels just as promptly, more cleanly and gently, without upsetting and harm to the system.

Keep free from constipation! It robs you of strength, hardens your arteries and brings on premature old age. Do not let a day go by without a bowel movement. Don't wait and hope, but go to a druggist and get one of the generous bottles of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. Take one proper dose that night and by morning you will feel like a different person. Use Syrup Pepsin for yourself and members of the family in constipation, biliousness, sour and crampy stomach, bad breath, no appetite, headaches, and to break up fevers and colds. Always have a bottle in the house, and observe these three rules of health: Keep the head cool, the feet warm, the bowels open.

We would be glad to have you prove at our expense how much Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin can mean to you and yours. Just write "Syrup Pepsin," Monticello, Illinois, and we will send you prepaid a FREE SAMPLE BOTTLE. —Adv.

Washington, May 17—Carleton W. Sturtevant, a civil engineer of New York, has been appointed by President Coolidge as a member of the Mississippi River flood board created by the Jones-Reid Bill.

Other memers of the board are the chief of army engineers and the president of the Mississippi River Commission.

Ritzy Rosey

The people of this progressive age are ever on the alert for some one thing that does double duty or more, be it in industry or wearing apparel. And Ritzy Rosey has what is certainly an accomplishment along that line—a single piece of lingerie which takes the place of brassiere, vest, girdle and panties. Incidentally, Ritzy is using one of those new powder and lipstick combinations which come so attractively arranged and which are so perfectly timed that, with normal use, the supply of both is exhausted simultaneously.

VETERAN TEACHERS HONORED AT O. S. U.

14 Faculty Members Are Guests at Banquet Given by Students

Marion Star Bureau
Ohio State University

Columbus, May 17—Recognizing the work of 14 faculty members who represent an aggregate total of more than 500 years of service for the university, students of Ohio State last week temporarily forgot personal grievances and showed their appreciation by staging a banquet for the veteran teachers.

Honored guest of the evening was Professor George F. McCoard, of the department of mathematics, who has the longest service record, 46 years, with the university.

Two former presidents and President George W. Rightmire, present head of the university, were paid tribute at the banquet. The ex-presidents were William H. Scott, who served at the head of O. S. U. from 1883 until 1895 and William Oxley Thompson, who took up the reins in 1895 and successfully controlled the university for 29 years.

Each of the 14 faculty members honored by the students has served the university for more than 35 years. All have watched the growth of the institution from the one or two-building college in the late eighties and early nineties to the 60-building university of the present day.

RICHMAN'S CLOTHES

All $22.50
DIRECT FROM OUR FACTORY TO YOU

Value We Challenge the World to Match

You can buy clothes at $22.50 from those who imitate the Richman price and selling plan—you can buy clothes for less—but you cannot match Richman style and quality except at substantially higher prices. For we manufacture ALL the clothes we sell in our own factories—we have by long odds the world's greatest direct-from-factory sales and production—we buy huge quantities of fine all-wool fabrics for cash—and we save you the middleman's profit. These are some of the reasons for Richman value leadership.

You will see convincing evidence that we do not overstate the facts—you will understand why so many men, to whom price is of little importance, are wearing Richman's Clothes when you try on a coat or two—when you note the way they fit, their inimitable style, the texture of the rich woolens, and the precisely fine needlework. Only when you make this test will you fully appreciate the difference between Richman's Clothes and those made to meet the Richman price.

Added to the value produced by Richman scientific volume production methods, and Richman buying power, you get workmanship of superb quality because the men and women who make Richman's Clothes own a big share of this business and are vitally interested in holding the public confidence upon which our success is founded.

COUNCIL GETS FINAL WORD FROM C.,D.&M.

Whether or not the city grants the company a new franchise in July when the present interurban franchise expires, will have no bearing on the operation of the interurban cars. They will continue to operate without a franchise.

"We would prefer to have a franchise," President Van Deinse told members of council last night. "It would make matters clear as to just what would be expected of the company in the keeping up the tracks and other matters of interest to the city. If Council does not care to grant the franchise, however, we will be compelled to continue operation without one."

That the city council might refuse to permit the company to bring its cars into the city, was answered by Mr. Van Deinse in the same manner as his reply to the statement made by Councilman Wilkins. The company he said, would welcome the action as it would provide an opportunity to bring the question of suspension of the lines before the Utilities Commission. That the commission would not permit the city to stop the cars from operating over the city streets is the general opinion.

Bus Franchise Expected

That there will be no further delay in the passing of the bus franchise, is the general belief at the City Hall. The ordinance granting to the Mack Brothers Transit Co. the franchise for operating bus lines in the city to replace the street cars was given the second reading at the meeting of City Council last Monday night. Adopting of the ordinance at both the first reading on April 23, and at the second reading Monday night was held up by Councilman Wilkins, second ward, who clung to the hope that some action leading to the continuance of the city service, might be brought about.

Final Steps Under Way for Construction of Ququa Improvement

Bids on the Ququa ditch will be received and opened at the office of the county auditor at 10 o'clock Saturday morning, according to announcement from the surveyor's office today. The contract will be let by the Board of Commissioners at a later date.

Plans and specifications for the ditch and bid blanks are on file at the office of the surveyor. The project consists of five and one half miles of open ditch work and one and one-half miles of tile. The estimated cost is approximately $30,000.

The ditch will drain southeast from the Harding Memorial grounds to the Whetstone River. It will drain a large tract of land in the vicinity of the Marion Cemetery, the St. Mary's Cemetery, the Harding Memorial and the Vernon Heights Realty tract.

The first mile and a half will be of tile. The remainder will be open and will follow the course of a small stream draining into the Whetstone.

The other fugitives are still at large.

ENGLISH WRITER DIES

ELEVEN STATES DEMAND MORE CONGRESSMEN

Ohio Among Group Seeking Rightful Representation in House

Washington, May 17—The claims of 11 states for their rightful representation in Congress and a counter-movement to enlarge the present membership faced the House today as it took up the Fenn bill to reapportion representatives among the states.

Brought to a vote at the insistance of leaders who say the House is flouting the Constitution in delaying reapportionment, the bill met bitter opposition from representatives of 17 states which would lose members under the bill.

Although the Constitution provides for a reapportionment of members of Congress every 10 years, based upon the census, no reapportionment has been made since 1911. Backers of the bill declare that the result is that the House is not representative of the country.

Based on 1920 Census

Because of the widespread opposition to a disturbance of the present membership, the bill of Representative Fenn, Republican of Connecticut provides for a reapportionment on the 1920 census. It also provides that if Congress fails to do this itself, the secretary of commerce shall apportion congressmen among the states.

The plea of spokesmen for fast-growing states such as Michigan and California for their due representation was endangered by the fear of members of agricultural states that they will steadily diminish in power as the growth of cities entitles them to new congressmen.

Oppose Enlargement

Arizona, 1; California, 6; Connecticut 1; Florida, 1; Michigan 1; New Jersey, 2; North Carolina, 1; Ohio, 3; Oklahoma, 1; Texas, 2; Washington 1.

Probable losses are: Alabama, 1; Indiana, 2; Iowa, 2; Kansas, 1; Kentucky, 2; Louisiana, 1; Maine, 1; Massachusetts, 1; Mississippi, 2; Missouri, 3; Nebraska, 1; New York, 1; North Dakota, 1; Pennsylvania, 1, Tennessee, 1; Vermont, 1; Virginia, 1.

House leaders are opposing its enlargement, declaring that a body of more than 435 members cannot function properly.

BANDITS SHOOT BOY IN CHICAGO HOLDUP

"I Don't Like Your Looks," Yells One and Opens Fire

Chicago, May 17—Two youthful bandits were holding up a "soft drink" parlor early today when William Watson, 17-year-old son of the proprietor, walked in.

"I don't like your looks," said one of the bandits to young Watson, and immediately opened fire, two bullets taking effect in the youth's stomach. At a hospital it was said Watson probably would die.

The bandits forced Merritt Watson, Jr., bartender in his father's place and brother of the wounded youth, and several customers to line up against the wall while they rifled the till of $65.

Finding the persuasion of their guns so powerful, the young desperadoes decided to "have some fun." They put their victims through a series of calisthenics, making them lie down—get up—lie down—

It was during the "setting up exercises" that young Watson chanced to enter. Before he could realize what was going on, Rooney had spat out his venemous statement and followed it with two bullets.

SOUTH CHINA ARMY NEAR EDGE OF CITY

Foreign Troops Guard Embassies; Whereabouts of Dictator Unknown

London, May 17—The advance guard of the South China (Nationalist) army was reported only seven miles southwest of Peking and ready to enter the suburbs, according to a dispatch received from Peking tonight. It consists of Shansi provincial troops. The southerners have captured both Paotingfu and Chochow.

Foreign troops (including American) are guarding the foreign embassies and compounds. This is the ordinary guard, which has not been strengthened since the actual advance upon the city began. The bulk of the foreign troops are held at Tien-Tsin.

It is reported that Soviet Russian troops guarding the Mongolian frontier are being reinforced. This has led to speculation as to whether Russian troops may move through Mongolia to join the southern army, if Peking is actually occupied.

The whereabouts of Marshal Chang Tso Lin, dictator of the Peking government and generalissimo of the northern armies, remains unknown. It is reported from Mukde that he has withdrawn from Peking with a large force of picked troops and is on his way to Manchuria.

Attaches of the United States legation in Peking were quoted as saying they did not anticipate any disorders but that preparations were made for any eventuality. Foreign residents of the city were advised either to leave or to remain in their homes.

KIWANIANS HEAR DELAWARE PASTOR

Rev. Otho S. Steel Gives Luncheon Talk on True Citizenship

Religious tolerance, racial appreciation and social equalization were declared by Rev. Otho Scott Steel, pastor of the Methodist church at Delaware, to be the three cardinal principles of true American citizenship, in an address before the members of the Kiwanis club at their weekly luncheon at Hotel Harding at noon today.

"The citizen who sets up one religious form as the standard for all mankind has not learned the A. B. C.'s of American independence" the speaker declared. A hopeful sign of greater religious tolerance in the United States, he said, was that men are learning to overlook the minor and unimportant differences between various forms of religion that were regarded as so important in the past.

A uniting of forces to combat the waves of crime and other social evils that are growing in the United States is the vital need, rather than to quarrel over forms of religious worship, Reverend Steel declared.

A greater appreciation of foreign nations and of the important part their people have played in the growth of this nation is needed if this nation is to continue its growth and prosperity, he declared.

"This nation is a great melting pot," he continued," and it is to people of all nations of the earth that we owe our growth and prosperity."

"It was no credit to this nation," the speaker declared, "that the exclusion act against the Japanese was passed a number of years ago. It was a direct thrust into the heart of a friendly nation. It is also no credit to this nation that great sums of money are appropriated each year for the building of mighty armies and navies when we should be striving for world peace."

One of the greatest needs of the nation, it was pointed out by the speaker, is the ability to put ourselves in the other fellow's place. More than 50 years after the great Civil war, when thousands of lives were lost for the freedom of the negro, the colored man still does not have the advantages of the white man, a fact which is no credit to the United States, the speaker said.

OFFICE INSPECTION NEARLY COMPLETED

Report on Examination of County Recorder's Books Expected Soon

While T. W. Jones, who is in charge of the examination of the accounts of the missing county recorder, Charles E. Smith, has made no definite statement as to the probable time of completing the inspection, it is probable that the examiners will be through with their work some time today or Friday morning.

The examiners have been ordered to make a special report on their findings. No statement concerning the condition of Smith's books can be made until the report has been examined by officials in the bureau of inspection at Columbus, Mr. Jones said today.

The inspection, now in progress, is the first that has been made since Smith took office in September, 1925. Every transaction made since that time in which fees were involved is being investigated by the inspectors.

The inspectors, Mr. Jones and A. G. Atwill, have been working in the court house for the past two months on the records of county officials. Orders for a special report on the recorder's books followed the mysterious disappearance of the official more than two weeks ago.

So far there has been no effort made to locate the missing official except that made by the parents, Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Smith, 135 Curtis-av. All efforts have been fruitless. The case is as much a mystery as it was two weeks ago last Monday when Smith failed to appear at his office at the usual time.

RIDDLED BODY OF FUGITIVE IS FOUND

Indications Point to Fact He Had Been "Taken for Ride"

Lebanon May 17—Riddled with bullets, the body of Jack Parker, also known as Thomas Combs, the object of a police search in connection with the slaying of "Buddy" Ryan, Cincinnati pugilist, was found in a ditch alongside the highway about two and a half miles west of here early today.

All indications pointed to a theory that Parker had been "taken for a ride" and had been slain on the road, his slayers then tossing the body into the gulley, 20 feet from the highway.

Parker said to be known to police in Cincinnati and Hamilton as an underworld character, was alleged by County Detective Joseph B. Schaefer to have been implicated in the spectacular holdup of the Clintonville bank near Columbus last week. A car, identified as the one used in that holdup, and said to have belonged to Parker was found abandoned and wrecked in Hamilton last week, with machine gun parts stored inside, according to the detective. Further investigation into Parker's death with the hope that it may shed new light on the bank robbery is being conducted.

Seventieth Congress To Close First Session on May 26

HOPES FOR TAX BILL PASSAGE

All Chances for Summer Session Vanish with Signing of Flood Measure

Washington, May 17—The Seventieth Congress will close its first session May 26 and begin a leisurely trek to the national conventions, under rules already approved by administration leaders.

The tax reduction bill alone stood as a barrier to the adjournment, but administration leaders hoped for its passage in the Senate today, a quick settlement of all differences between the House and Senate and its final enactment by the end of the week. It was whispered, however, that failure to pass the tax bill would not delay the adjournment as the tax reduction would be applicable to 1929 payments and could be enacted next December in plenty of time to become effective next year.

When President Coolidge affixed his signature to the flood control bill, it was said, all chance for a summer session vanished. This was the one piece of legislation, according to leaders, which might have postponed the date of adjournment or possibly have caused Congress to return to session after the conventions.

Will Veto Bill

The final enactment of the farm relief bill removed another though lesser obstacle to adjournment on May 26. It was quietly but authoritatively stated that the president will veto this bill and that no attempt will be made to enact it over his veto. Farm leaders were said to have agreed on this course because of the hopelessness of any attempt to get Congress to make it a law over the president's formal opposition.

The new merchant marine bill also was to go to the White House today, after its final enactment by Congress. This action likewise removed opposition to the May 26 adjournment date, as the president was said to favor the bill in its present form.

The Muscle Shoals and Boulder Dam bills, both of which were on the administration's legislative program, were in the background. The Muscle Shoals measure was in conference, with indications it would be reported back and finally enacted later in the week or early next week. It likewise was said to meet with presidential approval.

Chances Doubtful

The Boulder Dam bill was pending in both House and Senate, with its chances for enactment at this session doubtful. Senator Johnson, Republican, of California, was leading a stubborn though apparently forlorn fight to have it enacted in the Senate while Representative Swing, Republican, of California, was conducting a similar battle in the House. Reports indicated it might pass the House next week but a filibuster, fully capable of defeating it, is in waiting in the Senate.

The adjournment of Congress May 26 undoubtedly will find the tax reduction bill a law along with the flood control bill, the farm relief bill vetoed and pigeon-holed in House and Senate committees, the merchant marine bill a law, Muscle Shoals operated as a power project and the Boulder Dam bill side-tracked until the next session. These were the prospects today with but nine legislative days remaining before the scheduled adjournment.

60,000 TO SEE FIGHT

Sammy Mandell, Jimmy McLarnin Clash Tonight at Polo Grounds

BY JAMES L. KILGALLEN

NEW YORK, May 17—Sixty thousand persons, paying $300,000 or more at the gate, are expected to view the scheduled 15 round battle at the Polo Grounds tonight between Sammy Mandell, the Rockford, Ill., "Sheik," and "Baby Face" Jimmy McLarnin, of the Pacific Coast, for the lightweight championship of the world. It promises to be the most interesting lightweight battle in four years—since the night of July 23, 1924, when Benny Leonard whipped Lew Tendler in the same ring.

Both champion Mandell and McLarnin are supremely confident of victory. They are trained down to a fine point and ready for the bell. They have motored to New York City from their training camps in the country and will weigh in at the offices of the State Boxing Commission at 2 o'clock this afternoon. Neither boxer is likely to have any difficulty scaling below 135 pounds.

Heavy betting on the outcome was reported today, with Mandell a 6 to 5 favorite. It was freely predicted, however, that the fighters will enter the ring at even money. Many thousands of dollars have been wagered. The betting has been heavier than on any fight hereabouts since the Dempsey-Firpo thriller.

The fight has all the elements of a "natural." It brings together a brainy, resourceful and game boxer in Mandell and a knockout puncher in McLarnin. It brings a champion into the ring who has lost some of his popularity because of his wariness in selecting opponents against the tremendously popular McLarnin whose recent one round knockout of the sprightly Sid Terris amazed the fight fans of New York.

It will be the first time Mandell will have really risked his lightweight laurels since he won the crown from Rocky Kansas in Chicago on July 3, 1926. Since that time Mandell has boxed often enough—about 30 times—but most of his opponents were set-ups. He did, however, fight three first-rate boys—Jackie Fields, Phil McGraw and Billy Petrolle. The Fields fight, which was very close, was a no-decision affair and the title was not involved. McGraw, who had seen his best days, got a shot at the title but blew it, although he gave Mandell a hard scrap. Petrolle had Mandell on the floor but Sammy got up to beat him.

Battle Will Be First Real Test for Present Champion

SEEKING JURADO OR COMPSTON FOR PRO

Walter Hagen To Get First Shot at $15,000 Contract

By DAVIS J. WALSH

New York, May 17—Somebody stopped being dumb along about the end of the qualifying round of the British Open, it was learned on credible authority today, and decided that Joseph Jurado, like the rose that blushed unseen, was wasting his fragrance on the Argentine, even if it was garlic itself. Anyhow, the story around the United States Golf Association headquarters today was that Jose might be weaned away from the bones of the nuts of Buenos Aires and installed this summer as professional at a newly organized course in the Westchester County district of New York.

The same source of information declared that Archie Compston, Britain's best and perhaps only remaining golfer, might be offered the spot in preference to Jose, the idea being that an exhibit A is needed and any gent who beats Walter Hagen by 18 up and 17 to play ought to be on a pedestal with the other museum pieces.

Hold $15,000 Bait

The organization in question is the North Castle Golf and Country Club, near Mt. Kisco, and the report that either Compston or Jurado might be hired had its inception shortly after Thomas E. Donovan, guiding spirit of the outfit, announced that he had a $15,000 contract awaiting the winner of the British Open. This, it may be said, is an excellent contract, even if nobody gets it. As a matter of fact, it represents the largest bid for professional services in the history of golf.

Hagen, of course, ruined the continuity by winning the British championship. It being assumed by everybody that this nonchalant young man would be somewhat irked by the suggestion that he identify himself with any given proposition, exclusively and privately, while his public is clamoring incessantly and without surcease, which obviously is the wrong thing to be without. Anyhow, Hagen is to be blandished with the $15,000 offer as soon as he lands, according to the word passed along today. If he just cannot be annoyed, they will ask him to consider a part time identification with the course.

If this fails of enticement, there is no one left but Jurado or Compston, as Gene Sarazen, runner up to Hagen, is unavailable owing to an existing contract with Fresh Meadow.

RED SOX WIN FIFTH STRAIGHT CONTEST

Ty Cobb Leads Athletics to Victory Over Cleveland Indians

New York, May 17—Nobody is laughing at the Boston Red Sox these days. The back bid boys, for years the joke of the American League, have won five straight games and are less than half a game away from the first division. They nosed out Detroit yesterday, 5 to 4, in the eleventh inning, the defeat marking Detroit's sixth successive setback.

Bill Carrigan has collected a prize-winning bunch of rookie pitchers retained the best of the young players bequeathed him by former managers, and balanced the team with four seasoned veterans—Flagstead, Williams, Gerber and Hoffmann. The long distance hitting of Williams has won several games. The Sox have been leading the league in fielding.

Ty Cobb is getting spryer as the weather becomes warmer. The veteran drove in four runs with a home run and a single and actually stole a base as the Athletics slaughtered Cleveland, 15 to 2. Hale and Fonseca also hit homers. Rube Walberg held the Indians to five hits.

All other teams were idle yesterday. In the National League today the eastern clubs will begin the last leg of their western invasion. Cincinnati and Chicago, tied for the lead, take on Brooklyn and Boston respectively. The New York Giants, smarting under four successive defeats by the Cubs, will endeavor to wrest third place from the Cardinals.

HAS FAST ONE

Bridgeton, N. J., May 17—Walter Garrison, star New Jersey teamster, has a fast three-year-old pacer in Red Wilson, a son of Joe Wilson, 2:11¼. In his last work, he negotiated a mile in 2:19½, with the last quarter in 30½ seconds and the final eighth slightly better than 15.

It is better to be lonely than to be bored.

AT TOLEDO

Toledo, May 17—Kinney Direct 2.02¾, the fast Canadian bred pacer that won 15 races last year, is scheduled to arrive at the Ft. Miami track here in charge of Lupe Parker about May 15. He will be prepared for the $25,000 Page Dairy Pace, listed for July 10.

Johnson, Jones and Fulton will run in the half mile event, while Shipp and Oglesbee are to compete in the shot put. Haggard and Oglesbee will try for honors with the discus and Haggard and Barker for the high jump. Other entries are: Doll and Pfeiffer, broad jump; Shipp, Seig and Pfeiffer, javelin; Price, pole vault.

The relay team will include Carmean, Ford, Doll, Ward, Prater and Fulton.

FEAR INCREASE IN LOAN RATE

Bullish Forces Concentrate on High Grade To Boost Market

Markets at a Glance

Railroad stocks firm, industrial stocks irregular, domestic bonds easier, foreign bonds easier, call money 5 1-2 to six percent, copper firm, oil firm, grains steady, cotton strong, sugar steady, pig iron firm, foreign exchange irregular.

BY W. S. COUSINS
International News Service
Financial Editor

New York, May 17—Heavy withdrawals of the funds from the call loan market by the New York Banks, and the fear of an increase in the rediscount rate of the Reserve Bank after the close of the market today cut short the rally that was in progress in stocks which figured most prominently in yesterday's closing break.

Bullish forces in the stock market concentrated considerable attention on the high grade industrial and utility stocks as a background for their efforts to "hold the market up." American Tel and Tel, which has offered its shareholders new stock at 100, was bid up violently to 211 around the noon hour, for a gain of 15 points.

The airplane stocks moved up about 10 points in the forenoon, but demand for these stocks was not impressive and it required only moderate selling pressure to wipe out all of these advances.

Without special developments in industry and business it has become evident that the violent forward movements of the specialty stocks had undermined the whole market and injected the weakest pillar into the market's structure. Another sudden movement for profit taking in the fourth hour started the whole list downward, and prices easily dipped under the lowest prices recorded yesterday. Radio at 185 showed a loss of 6½ points for the day and 22 points from yesterday's high and General Motors was down near 10 points on the same basis of comparison. The oils, coppers and rails held substantially during the outpouring of selling pressure in the specialties.

1,400 SHARES OF LOCAL STOCK SOLD ON CURB

Sales of Marion Steam Shovel Co. common stock totaled 1,400 shares on the New York curb market, yesterday. Quotations were as follows: high, 82 1-8; low, 80; close, 81 1-4.

Huber Manufacturing Co. stock was listed on the Columbus exchange as follows: common, 130 bid; preferred, 103 bid, 105 asked.

Today in Marion Markets

Groceries, Produce, Meats, Grain, Livestock

Markets were quiet here today with dealers reporting ample supplies of nearly all kinds of fruits and vegetables. Buying, however, was light. Prices were changed little from yesterday. Old potatoes continue to supply the bulk of the demand at 35 cents a peck, although dealers report a gradual increase in the demand for the new stock at three pounds for 25 cents.

Peas were slightly more plentiful today and were selling at 20 cents a pound. Green beans, however, continue scarce, the few coming on the market today selling at 25 cents a pound. Asparagus continues plentiful and dealers report a ready sale at two bunches for 25 cents. Homegrown varieties are now supplying the demand. Large supplies of radishes were being carried by dealers and were being offered at five bunches for 10 cents. Icicle radishes are higher. A few being carried by dealers were selling at 10 cents a bunch.

Twenty-five cent strawberries continue to supply a part of the strawberry demand. A better grade of berries, however, is selling at 27 and 28 cents. Thirty-five cent berries have disappeared from the market. Continued low prices for strawberries are being predicted by dealers as indications for a large crop in the southern fields are reported.

Pineapples continue to move slowly at 20 and 30 cents. No marked increase in the demand is being anticipated by dealers until a further drop in prices. Oranges are selling at from 25 to 80 cents a dozen. Lemons are holding at 39 cents, although an advance is looked for by dealers should the warm weather continue.

Toledo Close

Toledo, May 17—Cash grain close. Wheat, No. 2 red 1.03½@1.04½; Corn, No. 3 yellow 1.10½@1.11½; oats No. 2 white 72½@74½; Rye No. 2, 1.43.

Seed Close—Clover, cash imported old, 14.50 asked, domestic 16.50; Oct. and Dec. 1.73 asked. Alsike, cash 15.00; timothy cash and May 2.22½, Dec. 2.05.

Today's Review of Yesterday's Market

Chicago, May 17—Rain, particularly over the Spring wheat belt of the Northwest, weakened wheat at the opening; the market held with a show of strength until near the end when it turned a flipflop and closed on the bottom in the bids. Corn, down, up and down, looked uneasy at the finish, according to the Herald and Examiner.

Wheat lost 2 1-8@2c for the day; corn, 1-8@3-8c; oats were unchanged to 1 1-4c lower; rye was down 1 1-8c.

Early in the session there was enough bullish conversation in certain quarters to have started a boom in waste material, but wheat would not go above the top of its opening range. That was just about where it closed the day previous.

Corn, after breaking nearly a cent early in the session, turned around sharply and went into high speed on the upgrade. It advanced a couple of cents from the low.

But it could not stay up. Its vigor waned, and prices sank back to under the previous close.

The buying of corn, largely short covering, probably was based on the small receipts here. That seems to me to be a poor reason. A couple of days, or even a couple of months of days, with receipts of less than a hundred cars, can not at this stage of the game offset the months when receipts ran away above the normal day in and day out.

As has been pointed out here repeatedly, ever since corn was selling at a much higher price, that the prospects for the new crops are brilliant. The corn acreage this year may be enormous compared to last year.

Undoubtedly corn will be planted in most of the abandoned wheat acreage west of the Mississippi.

With such an outlook it will be difficult to [illegible] corn much above the present level, [illegible] corn will be in [illegible]

MOVIES WILL RECORD CIRCUS SCENES HERE

Cameraman To Take Pictures of Crowds at Hagenbeck-Wallace Show

The opportunity that comes once in a lifetime will be present when the Hagenbeck-Wallace Circus comes to Marion, Wednesday, May 23, for performances afternoon and night.

Everybody will be given a chance to get in the movies, for there will be an expert cameraman from Hollywood, Cal., at the circus grounds from 11 a. m. to 2 p. m.

He will take pictures of the crowds and individuals. They will be shown at the Grand Theater a few days after the show leaves the city.

No one is barred from his lens. If you stroll by his tripod and camera he pays no attention to you, stand in front of his lens and make him take your picture. If Skinny and his gang decide to "crash the gate" by the route under the canvas in the back, the movie man may be there to catch them in their prank.

Another film showing circus life at winter headquarters is being shown at the same theater this week. This film was taken at Peru, Ind., during the training season. It gives an inside glimpse of what circuses do during the winter months.

He also spoke of Los Angeles, which he declared to be the "front of the nation," a city of a 1,400,000 population, with 6,000 factories and the second largest harbor in the U. S."

AT 82 SHE LEARNS TO FLY

Although 82 years old, the Duchess of Bedford is learning aviation. She pronounces flying a most exhilarating sport, and although she is learning to handle the controls, is not anxious to fly solo until more certain of her ability. She keeps the machine in an aerodome outside London and has it frequently "brought around" to her front lawn where she is picked up as a passenger to make her calls. She flew 6,000 miles in a round trip to Tangiers last year, and greatly enjoyed it.

LEADER'S LETTERS STOLEN

Politics are running high in Bolivia, and during the warfare the house in La Paz of Sir Ricardo Soruco Ipina, one of the opposition leaders in Parliament, was robbed. Correspondence in locked cases was taken, and it is believed this was the desired object of the thieves. A typewriter, overcoat and other objects were also stolen, as a blind, it is believed, for they were later found and returned to the owner, but no trace of the correspondence has been found. The communications were with other political leaders and directors of newspapers.

NO CHANGE HERE IN ROAD SERVICE PLAN

Local Auto Club Not in Position To Adopt Method Used in Larger Cities

That no change will be made in the plan of making a charge of $1 for road service to members of the Marion Auto Club was announced at the office of the club at Hotel Harding yesterday following the report that a free service plan is being adopted by clubs in some of the larger cities.

The Columbus Auto Club was the latest to adopt the free service for their members. The service is confined to the county, however. Any member of the club needing service outside the county will be required to pay the minimum charge and all over that amount will be refunded by the Columbus club.

The Marion club, it is said, is not large enough to undertake the cost in connection with the free service plan. Members of the local club are given the service at the minimum charge of $1 for a call made by any of the garages.

In announcing the new plan, Robert S. Pein, president of the Columbus club said: "We have been able to apportion the dues of our members so that a fund will be created for handling all emergency calls free of charge. This will include any trouble call within the county of any any members of the club."

Lady Bailey, the famous British flying woman, has been awarded the international trophy for women by the International League of Aviators for her altitude record for light airplanes. She reached a height of 18,000 feet last July.

RAILWAYS REGISTER EFFICIENCY RECORD

Fuel Consumption in Engine Operation Last Year Lowest Ever Reported

The old iron horse belching dense clouds of black smoke as it pours over rails at a rapid clip hauling long freight and passenger trains does not give the impression of very high efficiency.

However, according to reports completed by Class I railroads of the country, this is not true. The year of 1927 found railroads attaining the greatest efficiency in history.

An average of 151 pounds of fuel was required in 1927 to haul 1000 tons of freight and equipment, including locomotives and tenders, a distance of one mile. This, it was pointed out, was the lowest average ever attained by railroads since the compilations of these reports began in 1918. It showed a decrease of six pounds under the best previous record established in 1926.

For every pound of coal or its equivalent used, the railroads last year hauled 7.6 tons of freight and equipment one mile.

This means that for every 2.1 ounces of coal, the railroads hauled an average of one ton of freight and equipment one mile.

L. C. Woolsey, Cincinnati, traveling passenger agent of the South Fe railroad, was a business visitor at the Union Depot here yesterday.

The Erie Railroad is anticipating issuing a new time table to become effective on Sunday. Changes to be made in passenger trains over the lines have not been announced as yet but will be made public within the next few days.

C. E. Sawyer, Cincinnati, traveling passenger agent of the Southern Railroad, called at Union Depot yesterday.

Frank E. Gabriel, first trick baggage-master at Union Depot, was off duty yesterday on account of the illness of Mrs. Gabriel.

EAGLE-SNAKE BATTLE IN AIR

A battle in the air between a snake and an eagle has been reported by members of a recent slope to Cairo auto expedition. Near Pemba, Northern Rhodesia, they saw an eagle 100 feet above the ground with a snake coiled about its feet. The bird pounced on the snake, which had shown fight, and fastened itself on the eagles' leg. The eagle carried its foe up, while the snake made many attempts to strike its captor. The flier performed remarkable contortions, and eventually devoured the the snake inch by inch.

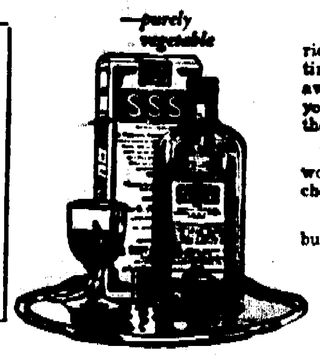
Take a Spring Tonic
for a very GOOD REASON

You feel sluggish—lack pep—appetite gone, you do not care to eat when you should enjoy your meals—pimples and boils may appear. You need an alterative tonic.

Why it should be S.S.S.

Because S.S.S. is the one remedy tested by time and perfected by science, which has been demonstrated by the experience of literally millions of satisfied users and by scientific tests in clinical laboratories to increase the appetite and build up to normal the count of red cells in the blood. This is the true basis of health and strength—the bright eyes, the clear unblemished skin, the glow and joy of bodily vigor, and resistance to disease.

POISON-OAK (Poison Ivy—Poison-weed)
We believe that S.S.S. will cure acute cases of poison-oak poisoning and will build up an immunity against further attacks. This belief is based on scientific reasons and is confirmed by such experience in actual cases as we have been able to collect. But we wish to be sure of success in all cases before beginning to advertise it as a specific for this ailment. Try it and write us your experience.



When your system is filled with rich, red blood, you don't have that tired, languid feeling when you awake in the morning. Instead, you feel refreshed, ready to meet the world.

Your appetite is keen—you enjoy work or play—your skin is clear, cheeks naturally rosy.

All this because rich, red blood builds and sustains the body.

"A decorator once told me that to appreciate the texture of a fabric or the glaze of a vase one's eyes should be closed. And to enjoy the fragrance of a perfume one should close one's eyes . . . one's other senses seem all the keener. That was the convincing thing about the blindfold test. TWO LOSE LIVES AS SMALL BOAT UPSETS

One Loses Balance, Comes to Surface and Overturns Skiff

Circleville, May 17—Pickaway County's first fatality of the season was on record here today following the drowning of two men in the Scioto River, nine miles south of here yesterday.

Both bodies were recovered last night by a searching party. They were identified as Walter Reid, 29, and Charles Nungesser, 38, both of Tarlton, near here.

The two men were in a boat setting trout lines. Reid, who was standing in the small skiff, is said to have lost his balance and tumbled into the water as the boat neared the east bank. He came to the surface and grasped the side of the boat upsetting it and throwing his partner into the water.

Reid's father witnessed the tragedy from the river bank.

Neither man could swim. Both were employed as farm hands by Frank Kreider.

BANKER DIES

Isiah Myers of Arcadia Recently Indicted in Financial Crash

Fostoria, May 17—Isiah Myers, president of the former Arcadia Bank at Arcadia, Hancock County, which was alleged to have failed as the result of irregularities in the handling of funds by bank officials, was to be buried at West Independence, Hancock County, this afternoon. Myers died at his home here Tuesday.

Myers, with 12 other employes, associates and former associates of the Arcadia institution, was indicted by the grand jury at Findlay, O., on March 2—charged with embezzlement and misapplication of funds, after a shortage of $300,000 had been reported by state banking examiners.

DAVIS ADDRESSES RAILROAD TRAINMEN

Declares All Must Adjust Selves to Changing Industrial Conditions

Cleveland, May 17—The chief topic of conversation today among the delegates attending the triennial convention of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen in sessions here, was the address yesterday made by Secretary of Labor James J. Davis in which he declared that nearly 250,000 railroad workers have been displaced by improved machinery during the last 10 years despite an increase of 20 per cent in railroad traffic.

"The relentless march of machinery and labor saving devices affects all industries," Secretary Davis asserted. "What to do with those who are displaced is a very serious problem which concerns all, and from which we can't turn away until it is permanently solved.

"We are in the transition age on the threshold of the machine age. We must find ways to adjust ourselves to the changing conditions and I have great faith in our ability to do so."

Secretary Davis also made a short address to the women's auxiliary branch of the trainmen's organization and attended a mass meeting of the Loyal Order of Moose of which he is director general.

Secretary Davis was to visit his parents in Sharon, Pa., today.

TO ARRAIGN TWO FOR NEUTRALITY VIOLATIONS

New York, May 17—Beni Gino Del Rio, 52, and Manuel Mendez, 30, both of Brooklyn, and John M. Beem, 29, of Hoboken, N. J., who were arrested last night by Department of Justice agents on charges of violating the United States neutrality laws, were to be arraigned today in Federal Court, Brooklyn.

The men are alleged to have been engaged in supplying rebels in Nicaragua with ammunition. Police said they found 8,200 rounds of .38 calibre revolver ammunition at a Brooklyn haberdashery store operated by Del Rio and Mendez.

ORDER EXTRA GUARDS IN KENOSHA HOSIERY STRIKE

Kenosha, Wis., May 17—Extra guards were ordered out today as a result of Kenosha's hosiery mill strike reaching the shooting stage last night. More than a dozen shots were exchanged when 25 strikers attacked an automobile in which nine strike-breakers were being driven home from the Allen A. Hosiery plant. Police arrested 20 men and four women, bringing the total arrests to 50 within three days.

BISHOP BAST FOUND GUILTY AT MEETING

Impudent and Unministerial Charges Made Against Him

Bishop Bast was not present when the report of the "select number of 17" was given to the conference.

Although deprived of his office of bishop, Dr. Bast retains his standing in the ministry. The "select numbers" report recommends that "adequate provision" for his support be arranged.

The committee recommended that favorable consideration be given Bast by the committee on episcopacy for his support and sustenance until the next quadrennial general conference. He will probably be assigned to a charge in his former area, members of the committee indicated.

The verdict was not unanimous, it was learned, a several of the jurors stood out for suspension for a quadrennium, and others for an indefinite time.

Bast still may appeal the findings of the court here, to the committee on judiciary of the church, and receive another ecclesiastical trial, probably at the next general conference.

It was virtually assured that the verdict would end the fight which had its inception in 1925, when Bast was accused of diverting funds of a printing plant at Copenhagen, which were intended for a mission school while in charge of the plant for more than 10 years, Bast was charged with using privately all earnings of the project during that period.

A criminal court in Denmark tried Bast on the charges preferred by Rev. John P. Ingerslew, his subordinate in the area, and found him guilty. Bast served three months in a Denmark jail. Later, the charges were sustained by a church court at The Hague.

Ingerslew, who was expelled from the church following his accusation of Bast, came to Kansas City to witness the final stages of the trial.

the large recording orchestras appear. He also announced that no admission will be charged to the dance hall on park-plan nights. The appearance of at least one large recording orchestra each week is now being planned by the park management.

Two new amusement buildings will help to provide entertainment for visitors to the park this summer. One of the buildings, known as the Arcade, and which will contain approximately $10,000 worth of Arcade picture machines, has been completed and the second building is now under construction.

All rides and amusement devices have been overhauled and the dance hall and other buildings redecorated in readiness for a gala season at the park. Several conventions and numerous picnics have already been booked and negotiations are now under way for several large industrial picnics, Mr. Scherff said.

A feature of the park this year will be the furnishing of coffee, cream, sugar and ice water free of charge to picknickers, whether large or small groups, and ample tables will be provided to take care of any size gathering. Tables will also be reserved without charge, it was announced by the manager, who also states that Addison Bain will be in charge of the picnic grounds and look after the welfare of the children.

Jack Crawford, whose orchestra will provide music for the opening night of the dance pavilion, is being mentioned as the coming "fat man" comedian of the movies, according to his press agents, who say Crawford may go to Hollywood at the close of the present season to enter the movies.

SUFFERED WORST FORM OF HEALTH TROUBLE HE SAYS

This Man Tells How New Konjola Stimulated His Liver and Ended His Suffering

MR. C. E. KETTERING

"I shall always praise Konjola as the one medicine that ended years of suffering," said Mr. C. E. Kettering, 75 North Sixteenth Street, Kenmore, O., (near Akron).

"All my health troubles were brought on by constipation and a sluggish liver. Laxative had no effect on me. Food did not nourish my body and the little food I did eat caused me intense misery. My system was filled with poisons and I was subject to splitting headaches and had pains in the back of my neck. My kidneys were so weak I had to rise several times every night and this broke up my sleep so that I was always tired out. Finally I developed neuritis in my shoulders and at times I could hardly stand the pain.

"I had been reading the Akron papers about this Konjola and one case described mine pretty close so I decided to get this medicine. I began to feel better in a short time. Now I am steadily getting stronger because I get the proper nourishment from food. Konjola cleansed the poisons from my system and regulated my liver. The headaches and dizzy spells have disappeared. My stomach is in perfect condition and my kidneys are normal so that I don't have to get up at night. Finally the neuritis pains eased up and then they vanished completely. I owe all my new health to Konjola and shall always recommend this medicine."

Advices from Rome, where the International Copyright congress is in session with Ambassador to Italy Henry P. Fletcher and Congressman Solomon Bloom, of New York, as the representatives of this country, are to the effect that there is little likelihood that this country will enter the international copyright union under the terms of the convention at Berne unless there is a radical change in the attitude of some of the European powers as indicated by their representatives at the congress.

The first week's session of the congress at which every civilized nation of the world is represented with the exception of Russia—if Russia can be counted a civilized nation, which is questionable—it developed that certain nations are seeking to define just about every possible product as subject to copyright or patent, even the pleadings of lawyers, sermons and parlor jokes.

Speaking of this attitude, Congressman Bloom expressed the view that, were the views to which the American representatives object to obtain, a newspaper could not print a photograph or a movie company reproduce a piece of natural scenery without running the danger of being sued for infringement of copyright by some photographer who had previously photographed the person or the scene and had it copyrighted.

Aside from this the hardest task ahead of the congress is to amend the constitution arrived at in Berne to include radio broadcasting and motion picture rights, which are not covered because the last congress was held twenty years ago.

It's a rather odd sidelight on the congress that, despite the position taken by Congressman Bloom regarding the danger the movie people might run should the views of some European countries prevail, there are present in Rome many attorneys and lobbyists representing American motion picture interests who are doing their utmost to get the United States to become a member of the international union.

Just possibly the motion picture producers have a few cards up their sleeves of which the American representatives are unaware. It may be that they figure that if priority in taking scenes and securing copyrights is to count, they can get to the line just a bit faster than anybody. And from all we are able to learn of them, we are ready to concede that probably they can.

Democratizing Railway Service.

Germany is planning to make her railway service more democratic, not because of a suddenly-developed democratic urge at this time, but rather as an economic measure. She proposes to make money by saving it.

If the plan of her railway administration is approved by the reichstag, all first-class cars save those used on international trains will be withdrawn from service and her third-class cars will be reconditioned to carry fourth-class as well as third-class passengers. Regular German trains in the future, if the proposed plan is put into execution, will be made up of cars of two classes; one class having upholstered seats which will be for the use of second-class passengers and the other class with wooden seats for the use of third and fourth-class passengers. The fares for the last-named class will be increased an eighth of a cent per kilometer—practically three-fifths of a mile—while the fares for the third-class passengers will be increased one-third of a cent per kilometer and those for the second-class one-half a cent per kilometer. By this plan, the railway administration hopes to sell more second and third-class tickets and save the expense of handling the first-class cars, figuring that the increased revenue and the saving thus accomplished will increase the net revenue at least $62,500,000 annually.

The first-class cars run will be limited to the international trains—generally known as express trains—for which an extra charge is made, and as an inducement to travel on these trains the prices will be reduced something over a cent per kilometer.

The German railway management claims that the first-class cars at present operated on other than international trains are used almost exclusively by parliamentarians and high government officials riding on passes, and that, as a consequence, the running of them is a total loss. This may be slightly overdrawn, as many American travelers make us of them, but the American travelers who travel first-class usually pay the extra charge and ride on the express trains, with the result that often a first-class car is run for the accommodation of one or two passengers. This is also often the case in Switzerland, where the overwhelming volume of travel is second and third-class, trains often being made up with but one first-class car and that frequently being run over an entire division with but one or two passengers and at times without any.

To Americans, accustomed to buy first-class tickets at home, the lack of patronage of first-class cars and the great popularity of second-class may be a bit hard to understand, but not so to those acquainted with the railroads of Germany and Switzerland, where second-class accommodations are clean and in some cases fully as comfortable as those of the first-class.

But it will be some time before we are able even to vision anything but first-class service attaining popularity here in America. As a matter of fact, we are inclined to go to the other extreme and favor the roads which offer the most luxurious accommodations regardless of the added charge exacted.

There's a bill before congress to raise the pay of government employes, estimates on the increase ranging from $20,000,000 to $25,000,000. It's a notorious fact that government employes are poorly paid. Still there's always the compensation. They are mighty liberally treated in the matter of sick leaves and vacations.

The paragrapher of the Arkansas Gazette says that "modest persons may cause themselves a lot of embarrassment by pretending to have read the latest novel." Not so much however, if they are really modest, as they would have suffered from reading it.

Among the congratulatory messages received by Mayor Bill Hale Thompson, of Chicago, upon the occasion of his fifty-ninth birthday anniversary, was one from James A. Moss, director of the United States Flag association, lauding him for "the splendid service you have been rendering the flag as the great exponent of America first." O fudge!

A member of the faculty of the University of Chicago says the United States is becoming a nation of newspaper fans rather than of books. Considering the kind of books put upon the market in recent years, let us hope his statement is founded on fact.

When all is said, that Washington newspaper's indictment of the members of congress who vote dry and drink wet was most decidedly commonplace alongside that of Senator Bruce, of Maryland, who simply scorched the members of the senate from the southern states for their protection of their home distilling industries.

Change Your Things When Wet.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

This is the time of year when it rains on occasion. You are bound to get wet once in a while. Some folks worry every time this happens for fear they will take cold.

The same folks are afraid of fresh air and especially currents of air. They wear skull-caps and night-caps. They are scared if they feel a draft.

They are afraid of wet feet. They think they must begin to snuffle and sneeze after the least exposure. I sometimes think this speedy effect is psychic, but it exists and must be considered.

Getting wet is a common experience. I do not approve of going out with the deliberate intention of getting wet, but clean water never hurt anybody. It makes no difference whether it is taken internally, or applied externally, either intentionally or inadvertently. No one need worry over a good wetting. There is nothing harmful about wet clothes. The danger comes from living in damp garments for hours, with consequent chilling of the body.

If you get wet, go on briskly with your work, or walk. So long as you are exercising, so long as your heart is doing its full duty, you are just as safe as you would be in the surf or lake.

Everybody knows it is unpleasant and unsafe to stay too long in the water. Likewise, if you are in wet clothes too long you get the same physical ill effects.

There must be proper reaction after such exposure, in order to ward off possible danger. Go home, rub yourself vigorously with a rough towel, clothe your body in dry garments, and you are just as safe and will be as invigorated as if you had had a dip in the surf at Atlantic City.

Make sure your hair is thoroughly dry and especially that your stockings are free from moisture. The extremities, for some reason or other, are more sensitive than the body.

Don't stay indoors because it rains. Put on your rubbers and sally forth in rain coat or under your umbrella. Let your skin rejoice in the moisture it will receive. It softens its texture and cleanses its pores.

In England and Scotland nobody pays the slightest attention to the weather. Shoes and clothing are made with reference to whatever may come.

Of course, you will not be foolish about it, and stay in your wet shoes and garments. Every business man and woman should have suitable clothing at the business place, so that proper change can be made. If you follow this rule you will rejoice in the experience of getting wet and will suffer no ill effects.

Editorial Opinion.

TAXES AND FEDERAL GIFTS OF CASH.

The congressional inclination not to meet the president's idea of what is sound tax reduction still endangers the bill. It causes a suspicion that the persons working to get appropriations for such projects as Boulder dam are willing to draw a veto for the tax bill and thus retain the money in the treasury.

Mr. Coolidge is interested in distributing a surplus to the taxpayers. He is interested in keeping this distribution from creating a deficit. He is opposed to the sectional projects which, if appropriated for to the extent asked, would require additional taxation.

Boulder dam influences remain as active as if they never had been checked. This enterprise will return to the consideration of the senate as soon as the tax bill is out of the way, and if the president should be forced to veto tax reductions because it cuts too deep there will be $200,000,000 of surplus to be fed out to the pork projects.

Radical Republicans are opposed to tax reduction. Their theory of taxation is a punitive one. It is not related to the needs of government but to the conscription of wealth. The Democrats play for excessive tax reduction, hoping for a veto which would protect it, with the Democratic record standing for one more generous than a Republican administration would accept.

These are some of the troubles in which the national finances are involved. The question of estate taxes involves an issue of tax policy but for the most part the reduction is determinable by justice and prudence, justice in relieving the people taxed and prudence in not bringing the revenue down below the margin of safety.—Chicago Tribune.

CHINA IS CHINA.

"What is China?" asks the League of Nations. Appealed to by the Chinese Nationalists to stop Japan's encroachments, or intervention, or protective measures, or whatever the Nipponese are doing in Shantung, the functionaries at Geneva inquire how the league can recognize a faction in China rather than a government. They need not hesitate. It makes no difference in the situation. For the moment, Japan is directing its operations against the Nationalists. But it would as soon do likewise against the Northerners, if they happened to be the handiest objective offering the best excuse.

What Japan wants is Shantung. Not militarily, perhaps, except it be necessary, through purely self-protective measures, of course. But economic control is something Japan covets; control of the railroads, control of the huge resources of that rich province.

So what difference does it make to the League of Nations? It is just a matter of choice. The league may decide to keep hands off, or it may elect to do whatever it is that the league is accustomed to doing to stop a war. But the league may as well make up its mind to one thing: It is Japan against China, no matter which faction happens to be first.

And incidentally, the league might get some good practice by taking a hand. Or perhaps it would prefer to have the United States do it? With all the covenants and multilateral treaties and such-like pacts available, and everybody talking peace movements, it would seem a propitious movement for some good journeyman peacemaker to do a handy little job.—Minneapolis Journal.

A Fervent Hope.

Physicians, having caused a tremendous increase in the price of liver by recommending it to anaemics, we hope they will not discover anything remedial in ham and cabbage.—Omaha Bee News.

Practical Psychology.

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Professor Knight Dunlap, of Johns Hopkins university, in a recent address before the American association, while developing some interesting theoretical considerations which we can not study here, related experiences of his own which any one can repeat and test for himself.

Like many persons who use the typewriter, Professor Dunlap has been annoyed by the occasional transposition of letters in rapidly typing familiar words. One of the most common of these transpositions is that which produces the nondescript spelling "hte" for "the." One might exhaust considerable ingenuity in trying to analyze the state of mind or nerves which produces this phenomenon, but Professor Dunlap, without recording his impressions of the precise cause of the effect, told how he succeeded in overcoming the habit.

Assuming a certain postulate of his own, namely, that "a response" has, in itself, no effect on the future probability of the same stimulus pattern producing the same response, and may have the effect of decreasing the probability, he said:

"I now proceeded to try the typing of 'hte' voluntarily, as a means of destrying it. I set to work deliberately and wrote about a half page, single spaced, of the 'hte' combination, with the futuric thought that this was a 'word' that I would not write in the future—unless deliberately and voluntarily. Somewhat over a week later I followed this with a second 'practice period,' writing less than a third of a page. This was over three months ago. Since that time I have typed many pages, some rapidly, but have not found on reading them over a single case of 'hte.' This may sound too easy to be true, but as a matter of fact a lond-standing and troublesome habit has disappeared."

Professor Dunlap had a similar experience with auto-driving. "Having just changed from driving a Ford," he said, "to operating a gear-shift car, certain minor vices of technique, such as a tendency to step on the accelerator when meaning to apply the brake, manifested themselves. The application of the catharsis method seems to have overcome these faults very quickly."

Professor Dunlap suggested that this "catharsis method" might have enormous value in application to a host of troubles and defects of response and conduct, including stammering and other speech defects. In fact, he says, it is "hard to set the limits of possible application, and from present indications a vast number of hitherto insoluble problems may be solved in this way.

He thinks that one of its most important applications may be in the explanation of dreams. "The dream is a process of eliminating, or 'forgetting' details of mental—waking—performance which it is useful to take out of the habit-systems, either because of their irrelevancy or because of their interference with orderly mental life. . . . All we need to assume, for the present, is that conditions are favorable during sleep for the operation of eliminative factors.—Copyright, 1928, International Feature Service, Co.

Karl Tausig—Composer.

BY COZETTE DOUGLASS.

Karl Tausig, most renowned pupil of the great Liszt, was born at Warsaw, November 4, 1841. As a piano virtuoso, composer, and teacher, the name of Tausig ranks high on music's scroll of honor.

His father, who had been a pupil of Thalberg, was the boy's first teacher. At the age of fourteen his exceptional promise came to the attention of Liszt, who took him under his guidance as a student. Due to his fortunate association both with a pupil of the eminent Thalberg, and the great master Liszt, himself, Tausig combined the qualities of the two schools in his interpretations. He eventually surpassed Liszt in flawlessness of technique—due, in great part, to his systematic practice of his own transposing finger-exercises.

Tausig's public debut was made at Berlin in 1858, the occasion being an orchestral concert conducted by Von Bulow. His immediate success was assured and he toured the principal cities of Germany, Russia and Austria giving concerts and leading orchestras. Everywhere he was hailed as the leading pianist of his day. Rubenstein alone approaching him.

An earnest student of philosophy and ardent in all of the higher intellectual pursuits, Tausig was able to temper an ardor and enthusiasm comparable to that possessed by Liszt, giving him an inestimable advantage over his contemporaries whose impetuosity often interfered with the perfection of their execution. His compositions exhibit a deep knowledge of musical principles and a brilliant genius for melodic expression.

Tausig's death in 1871 at the age of thirty years robbed the music world of one whose short, sensational career promised an even more brilliant maturity. — Copyright, 1928, Newspaper Feature Service, Inc.

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. McINTYRE.

New York, May 17—Manhattan's tardiness in arriving at social affairs grows worse with the seasons. It is an almost unwritten social code to arrive at a dinner from a half hour to an hour late. It does not matter if a theater party is to follow.

After the same fashion most guests do not seem to know when to go home. Ten years ago the luncheon hour was 12 o'clock and luncheon places were deserted by 1 p. m. Today the lunch crowd has not reached its peak until 2 and they begin to leave at 3.

The dinner hour has been moved steadily forward until 9 o'clock. This lateness has been the despair of thousands of hostesses and hosts who have had their dinners grow cold. It is responsible for the prevalence of the buffet froid.

Professional people of the stage and screen are the chief offenders in this dilatory gesture. Back of it all is the desire to attract attention. And New York regards it as "smart." Impetus, too, has been given the notion by the chronic lateness of Mayor Walker.

There are a few old-fashioned folk who cling to the idea that to arrive late is a breach of etiquet, but they are a pitiful minority. Ty Cobb, for instance, always arrives on the precise dot, causing him to observe he frequently helps the hired butler roll in the ice-cream freezer.

Congested traffic is the standing alibi of late arrivals, if they care enough to offer an explanation. Another contributing cause, aside from the hope of being noticed, is the fear of being bored. New York has no sympathy for a "flat" party, and will walk right out.

But if it swings into high speed, the guests will gladly remain to greet the sun with a hiccough. These reflections were inspired by an incident of the week. A banker had invited thirty-six couples to a dinner. At 9 only four couples arrived. He waited until 9:30 and escorted his guests to a private cafe. The dinner was ruined.

• • •

A foreign architect observes: "New York expresses splendor in every type of building." He should be wheeled around to some of the street car barns.

• • •

There has been an overtone of publicity recently about the democracy of millionaires and their wives. There are reports of them giving dinners at Child's and riding in sight seeing buses. I will believe some of it when I see a millionaire and his wife put-putting through Fifth avenue in one of those flying motor cycles with a side car.

Nor have these flopears ever heard a flapper say: "I mean I actually do"—a phrase featured by their prototypes in every play.

• • •

The flapper notion was grossly exaggerated. Every young girl with short skirts and shingled head was considered a rake-hell ready to get pie-eyed on a few scoops of gin, or necked with a handsome yeast-eater at the drop of the hat. Some simulated the comic paper presentation, but they were merely the' showoffs. There are a few young ladies left who do not swig gin, pet in public or read dirty books. They are not so noticeable because they make no effort to be seen.

Times have changed, but not much. The ukelele supplanted the mandolin, the surreptitious cigaret is smoked in the open and in the final analysis youth has acquired more self assurance. I recall the first girl in our town to ride a bicycle in a divided skirt. Grandma warned me about her. "She's as wild as a pigeon," she declared.—Copyright, 1928, by the McNaught Syndicate, Inc.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

Will Hays and George Eastman, who have a great deal about motion pictures in one way and another, are happily getting their heads together. Hays has a wonderful idea—use motion pictures to show the details of the operations of modern surgery. Successfully worked out, this will be a great boon to medical students everywhere. Students can not all see the masters at work, but they can see the technique by means of pictures.

We can't speak of Africa, accurately, the dark continent. The sunlight of progress is falling on a great deal of Africa. This year the South African government is spending $65,000,000 on its railroads. Visiting Africa is no longer an adventure. It is a comfortable journey—unless you prefer the jungle, which there is plenty left.

The eighty-three cities of 100,000 or over in the United States contain nearly a third of all our people. And we now have six cities with over 1,000,000 persons each. Forty years ago thirty-five per cent. of the people lived in towns and cities. Today more than half.

In a way it is a hopeful sign that people tend to live close to each other and to work cooperatively. They realize their dependence and they realize that great success can come through learning to live intelligently together.

It is an equally good sign for the human race that there are still men and women who love to till the soil and find rest for their souls in open spaces. Fortunately for millions of us there will always be folks, and plenty of them, who like the country best.

• • •

You can apparently prove anything with figures—and then find there are things stronger and more true than figures. One can show that at the rate at which population is increasing in this world the world will one day be so overcrowded nobody can live in it. But it never happens and never will happen. By and by the birth rate grows less, and population becomes stationary at the point at which people can live in reasonable fashion.

The Isle of Man.

BY TEMPLE MANNING.

Although it is in a rather out-of-the-way part of the British Isles, and although in order to reach it you must travel for three hours over the stormy Irish sea, it is well worth the trouble to visit the Isle of Man. Hidden, as a rule, behind a veil of mist, poetically called "Manannan's Mantle," the island was known only to its inhabitants, and the people who, by accident, had stumbled upon it, until a few centuries ago.

This island is steeped in tradition. The people have their heroes, and their fears, and any old man or woman would be delighted to spend a few hours telling you the legends of the countryside.

There is one story that seems to be the favorite. It is about the Ghost of the Castle. It seems that there is an old, old castle, so old that people have lost count of its exact age. This castle, however, was haunted by a strange ghost, a spectral black dog. And every evening, when the soldiers guarding the castle would crowd around the fire, the dog would join them. Not a sound would he make, however.

And, the story runs, one night a young soldier, intrigued by the mystery, swore that he would track the ghost to its lair. No one could persuade him otherwise, and so he followed the dog. Whether or not he solved the mystery to his own satisfaction was never known. For when he returned he had been stricken dumb and within a few days after the adventure, he died of a mysterious malady.

Don't Make a Toy Out of Baby

-Babies Have Nerves-

By RUTH BRITTAIN

Much of the nervousness in older children can be traced to the overstimulation during infancy, caused by regarding baby as a sort of animated toy for the amusement of parents, relatives and friends. Baby may be played with, but not for more than a quarter of an hour to an hour daily. Beyond that, being handled, tickled, caused to laugh or even scream, will sometimes result in vomiting and invariably causes irritability, crying or sleeplessness.

Fretfulness, crying and sleeplessness from this cause can easily be avoided by treating baby with more consideration, but when you just can't see what is making baby restless or upset, better give him a few drops of pure, harmless Castoria. It's amazing to see how quickly it calms baby's nerves and soothes him to sleep; yet it contains no drugs or opiates. It is purely vegetable—the recipe is on the wrapper. Leading physicians prescribe it for colic, cholera, diarrhea, constipation, gas on stomach and bowels, feverishness, loss of sleep and all other "upsets" of babyhood. Over 25 million bottles used a year shows its overwhelming popularity.

With each bottle of Castoria, you get a book on Motherhood, worth its weight in gold. Look for Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the package so you'll get genuine Castoria. There are many imitations.—Adv.

Itinerant Evangelist Sentenced To Workhouse After Affair With Girl

Toledo, May 17—Rev. William Shepherd, 57, itinerant evangelist and pastor of the Pilgrim Holiness Church of this city, today started serving a sentence of one year in the workhouse, meted out here yesterday afternoon in domestic relations court.

Williams, who has moved many congregations by his zeal, faced a different assemblage yesterday as eloquently sobbing out his guilt, he protested his love for the 16-year-old girl he had courted.

The girl, whose name was withheld, appeared against the preacher and testified that she had made several trips to nearby Michigan cities in Williams' company and that recently he had taken her from Toledo and kept her in Detroit until Tuesday when she returned to her home here.

A $1,000 fine was tacked on Williams' sentence by the court and he also faces Federal prosecution on charges of violation of the Mann Act.

The "Luxury" of a Clay Pack

By Edna Wallace Hopper

Do you regard a clay pack as one of those delightful inventions for those who can pay to look young? When your own face seems to sag, looks sallow and tired to you simply accept it as "one of those things?"

All it needs is care. A tired skin can be remarkably refreshed by my simple clay pack.

Get a tube of Edna Wallace Hopper's White Youth Clay and apply it as directed. When you wash it off the gentle, purging action of the clay leaves a pleasant afterglow. The pores are freed of tiny, blemishing clots of dirt which become embedded and, particularly in oily skins, form blackheads. Your face is thoroughly freed from these obstructions and the pores can function normally. The clay also is an astringent, leaving the pores closed, the skin firm and clear.

My White Youth Clay is the only product of its kind of which I know. It is dainty and agreeable to use. Get it at any toilet counter, in several sizes.—Adv.

'The Understanding Heart'

A Story of the California Forests

BY PETER B. KYNE

CHAPTER 51

As John Thurlow had surmised, his executive chief, Jethroe, had decided in view of the altered status of his wife to eliminate the former as an executive. The Hercules Company had spent a year's work on auriferous ground in the Dogwood Flats district and while this ground was being hydraulicked with well-organized and briskly conducted campaign might save his employer considerable money, not to mention the diversion to his personal account of a few hundred thousand dollars which otherwise would have gone to John Thurlow.

He could afford to lose any number of John Thurlows, but decidedly he could not afford to lose that auriferous land. He had the equipment on the ground and hence could afford to make better terms than any competitor; indeed, he occupied a strategic position which might well decide a possible competitor against developing an interest in the property should Garland strive to stimulate competition.

His first move was characteristic of his methods of business procedure. Strangely enough it did not occur to him to purchase a copy of Uncle Charley's will. He took it for granted that the will was quite in order and immediately began an inquisition into Uncle Charley's antecedents.

This latter task he turned over to an efficient detective agency with instructions to find a relative or an unsatisfied judgment against Uncle Charley. Surely (he reasoned) no man could have spent a lifetime in mining without having become involved in some sort of litigation, and out of a vast personal experience he knew one does not always win his lawsuits.

Great was his relief when the detective agency finally rendered its report. It had spent a few thousand dollars of Jethroe's money investigating Uncle Charley's life from the cradle to the grave, and in the records of the Superior Court of Shasta County it had unearthed the record of a suit for divorce against one Minnie Temple Canfield.

From this record it appeared that an interlocutory decree of divorce, on the ground of desertion, had been granted the late Canfield on August 25, 1896, but a further search of the records to date had failed to develop the fact that Canfield had ever applied for and received final decree of divorce.

Jethroe was exultant. In the eyes of the law Minnie Temple Canfield had been Uncle Charley's wife—if she were still living—to the moment of his death. If still living, she was his legal widow! To locate her was Jethroe's next move and in the search he had, as a point of departure, the address given in the court record.

Within 10 days he had found her a gray-haired woman, of 50 or thereabouts, employed as cashier in a Sacramento restaurant. To interview her, acquaint her with the legal issues involved and incite her to action in the hope of a monetary reward which, to her, represented a small fortune, was a trifling task for Jethroe's astute representatives.

Within three days after she had been found she had resigned her position, under a promise of adequate financing, and entered a suit in the Superior Court of Siskiyou County contesting the validity of Uncle Charley's will and claiming the entire estate as the sole legal heir of the deceased.

The suit of Uncle Charley's relict alleged undue influence on the part of Monica Dale and Anthony Garland and mental incompetency on the part of the testator. She had engaged as her counsel one of the best-known lawyers in the state.

A process server came out to the San Dimas and served a copy of the complaint and a summons in action against Anthony Garland, as executor, and then rode on up the trail to Bogus to serve a similar complaint and summons on Monica Dale. Long before he had reached the lookout station, however, Garland had telephoned the news to Monica.

The girl accepted the situation with her characteristic stoicism. "Just some more of the Dale luck, Tony," was her sole comment. "Do you think you can oppose the suit successfully?"

"No, I cannot," he told her frankly. "The opposition counsel will be certain to question us all very minutely concerning the circumstances of Uncle Charley's death and they will make a strong point of the fact that he was actually dying when he made his will, as witness he was unable to sign it.

"They will hint to the judge that a conspiracy was an easy matter in view of the circumstances. They will claim that since Uncle Charley had never bothered to obtain a final decree of divorce, that argued his hope for a reconciliation; and that wife of his will probably swear that from time to time he made overtures for such reconciliation. And, of course, if she is still his legal wife, she occupies a strong legal position."

"I'm sorry you filed the will for probate, Tony. Since I have to lose I'd rather not have been in the fight."

"My darling old sport, I didn't file it for probate. I filed it merely to uncover Jethroe's plan of campaign."

"But what good will that knowledge do us, Tony?"

"None, that I know of. Still, information isn't a heavy thing to carry about with one. I like to discover things on the off chance that the information may prove useful some day. I think it's a habit inherited from my father. He could never pass a piece of string lying in his pathway; always saved it on the theory that it might come in handy some day to tie up a bundle."

Monica summoned a tired little chuckle. "Bismarck once said that fools write letters and wise men keep them," she remarked irrelevantly; and added, with equal irrelevance: "By the way, Jim Kirby, the district attorney, was up to see me yesterday. He called to thank me for the care given his baby."

"What else did he have to say, Monica?"

"Not very much. He's still very despondent over his wife's death. He spoke rather feelingly of his great debt to Bob Mason. I was going to tell him how he could pay it, but decided to leave that to my lawyer."

"I'm glad you did, Monica."

"Have you commenced your efforts to secure Bob a new trial?"

"No. Bob was regularly convicted. His attorney appealed from the decision of the Superior Court, but the decision was confirmed by the Appellate Court, sentence was then duly pronounced and so much time has now passed that to reopen the case would require time and money and might not be successful.

"Consequently, my job is to adduce so much evidence tending to prove that Bob was unjustly convicted—that he did kill in self-defense, that the trial judge and the district attorney will become reasonably convinced that there has been, after all, a miscarriage of justice.

"If possible I will try to convince the jury that convicted him. My next move will be to induce judge, jury, and district attorney to present a memorial to the governor, together with proper sworn affidavits touching on the newly adduced evidence; and under those circumstances it seems reasonable to presume that the governor will do the humane thing."

"Oh, Tony, if you only could!"

He laughed softly. "Well, to start, we have the district attorney in a reasonable frame of mind. He will not require an undue amount of convincing, and the trial judge is interested solely in seeing that justice is done. And we will have one splendid advantage in pursuing our new course. Jethroe's brilliant criminal lawyer will not be present to ridicule and riddle our newly discovered evidence, to raise doubts in the minds of those former jurymen and raise delicate points of law for the judge to interpret.

"If necessary to do so I will, personally, or in company with Sheriff Bentley, canvass the county and secure the signatures of every man and woman in it for Bob's pardon, and restoration of citizenship rights.

"I'll try to get the county press interested, and perhaps the county officials may consent to write strong letters to the governor. My real ace in the hole, however, is Bentley. He constitutes the Republican party in Siskiyou, he knows his power and he isn't bashful about using it—in behalf of a friend. Governors are usually in politics permanently—and they remember men like Bentley and the power they wield in their communities. Poor old sheriff! He never will get over the fact that he chased Bob Mason with dogs."

"Oh, Tony, you're such a comfort to me."

"I want comforting you to be my lifetime job, sweetheart. Until I met you I was in a way of being contented with the small things of life. A long spell of illness such as I experienced is apt to destroy one's lust for competitive effort. And I had no one to consider except myself and I loved my job. But now—well, I've got to go down to the immense and contemptuous world again and start my battle with men."

A Story of Boyhood Adventure

BY JUDD M. LEWIS

Tomorrow will be Friday, and then Saturday, and then Sunday and then back to school again. I told Jubilee when we woke up this morning that it don't seem like we have had a holiday at all. He wagged his tail and said nothing. I don't think he thinks a kid is very brite or he wouldn't go to school every day. But he don't know what he is talking about. The kid that don't go to school is a bonehead all his life and he has to work for the fella that does go to school. All the fathers I know are wishing they had went to school more when they were little, and then they could be making a lot of money and their wives could have a better house and a better auto than the woman that lives next door. I am going to be smart and make a lot of money so that all the people that live next door will wish they had as good an auto as we have got, and all the women will be telling their husbands they ought to be like me. Then I suppose some of the husbands will bean me with a brick sometime when I'm not looking. But a fella can't have everything.

When I got out to the barn the most of the bunch was there, and Banty had one of the cow ropes and he had made a slip-not in one end of it, and he said if I put it around the cow's ankle, when I sot down to milk he would pull that leg back out of my way so I would have more room, and after a while the cow would learn to stick that leg behind her whenever I sot down to milk. I told him he had a crack in his bean, but the bunch wanted to try it, so I put the rope on the cow's ankle and left it loose till I got ready, and then I told Banty to go ahead. He leaned back on the rope and a cow always brings her foot way up to her belly to start a kick, and when she felt the rope pull she shot her foot forward so sudden that Banty came sailing through the air like an airplane and knocked me off the stool, and we were both a mess. Just then my ant came in to see what all the hollering was about, and she wanted to know what the rope was doing on the cow's ankle. Banty told her it was on the cow's neck but had slipped down, so she went in the house but she was so busy thinking about something that she almost fell over the pail under the hydrant at the corner of the kitchen. She couldn't see how the rope could slip down that way, and neither could I.

We got most of the dirt off of us before we went to school, but when I went in to breakfast my ant said I smelt like a stockyards. I told her I never did see a boy that smelt like a geranium and she said neither did she.

Little Girl Had Rash Three Years Cuticura Healed

"When my little girl was a month old I noticed a red rash on her face. Soon her body was covered, and her skin and hair became very dry. Later it spread to her arms and legs and scales formed on her face. It itched badly and she would scratch the back of her neck until it would bleed.

"She had the trouble three years when my sister-in-law advised Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I purchased some and after using one cake of Cuticura Soap and half a box of Cuticura Ointment she was healed." (Signed) Mrs. Frank Strickland, 775 Eleanor St. N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich., Sept. 21, 1927.

Keep your skin clear by using Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Talcum for daily toilet purposes. Touch pimples and itching, if any, with Cuticura Ointment, before bath. Cuticura Soap and hot water. Cuticura Talcum is unexcelled in purity.

The Heart Story of a Woman's Lasting Affections

BY ADELE GARRISON

I found myself trembling with wild terror at Dicky's danger and thrilling with pride at the way he dominated the situation so filled with peril for all of us. I knew then "beyond all doubt-ing, truly," that Dicky was still my man, that even though the beauty of our romance had been tarnished by our quarrels, our anger, our jealousy, but above all by his awful doubt of me, yet never could my love for him die.

Yet how to build a new structure of happiness upon so slight a foundation! This is my problem as I suppose it is that of thousands of wives who find that their carefully reared and cherished temples of marital love and fealty are but heaps of tumbled stones.

It is a problem the working out of which I cannot much longer delay. We are still at my father's home, the farmhouse of eastern Long Island which has been the scene of so many of our joys and sorrows. But the exigencies of both Dicky's work as illustrator and his magazine venture with Edith Fairfax demand his residence in or near the city as much as mine is required there by the responsibilities of my position in the organization of Philip Veritzen, the greatest dramatic producer of the country.

I must plan a home with Dicky and must decide the terms upon which we shall live in it—whether we shall continue the arrangement of being apparently lovers but in reality strangers which we have kept up ever since Grace Draper's death following Dicky's terrible doubt of me, or whether we shall wipe the slate clean and begin a new chapter.

It is the end of the Summer, the beginning of the lovely Long Island Autumn. I am loath to leave the farmhouse, which is the center of other emotional problems, apparently as difficult of solution as mine. Harry Underwood and Lillian are still with us, the returned adventurer not yet fully recovered from the illness following his wounding at the hands of Serrim, the murderous conspirator against the government. Lillian as yet has given me no word of comment upon her reconciliation with her husband, nor has Marion Morton, her idolized young daughter, betrayed any hint of her reaction to her mother's decision. Yet instinctively I know that Marion is secretly rebellious and her mother deeply grieved and anxious concerning the future.

But it is Mary Harrison's problem which is causing me the most uneasiness of anything outside my own difficulties. I know that Dicky's exquisitely lovely and rarely gifted young niece is secretly suffering because of Philip Veritzen's maneuvers to separate his son Noel from her and throw him into the company of the Princess Olina of Transvania, known to our little world as Eleanor Lincoln, the chatelaine of The Larches. Mary does not suspect the identity of the princess nor of the handsome youth who calls himself George Jackson, but who is in reality Prince Georges of Trez, once the devoted admirer of Princess Olina but now unmistakably wooing Mary much to Noel Veritzen's chagrin.

It is a romantic situation surrounding this quartet, two of whom are of royal birth, set down among us only because of fantastic accident. But I can see no happiness in the grouping of Noel with Princess Olina and of Prince Georges with Mary the marriage ment so carefully made and fostered by Philip Veritzen because of his desire to unite his son in marriage to the daughter of the Queen of Transvania whom he loved in his youth.

Many times in the weeks following the discovery of Princess Olina's identity, and her deliverance from the man who was hounding her, have I resolved to appeal to Philip Veritzen in the hope that he might ease encouraging Princess Olina's very open though naive siege of Noel's heart. But in all ways I have been deterred by the knowledge that any personal request of mine to Philip Veritzen was apt to be construed by my employer as an opening for cleverly disguised but unmistakably sentimental advances upon his part.

Sooner or later, however, I must recognize this absurd personal interest with which Philip Veritzen invests his association with me as my employer, and must deal drastically with it. I should be more disturbed over it, should feel guiltily that in some way I must be to blame for his folly were it not that I am constantly piqued by my realization of Edith Fairfax's adoration of Dicky, and of what I believe is her secret determination to win him from me, taking advantage of her close professional association with him.

I suppose that unpleasant cynics would say that we four form the "eternal quadrangle." twenty years ago they called it the "eternal triangle," but that was before the problem of wives working outside the home added the fourth angle to the theorem of marital unrest. But I resent that supposition imputation both. Whatever the feeling of Philip Veritzen and Edith Fairfax may be, I know that I am not romantically interested in my employer, nor do I believe that Dicky really cares for Edith. But my knowledge of Edith's feeling, and Dicky's suspicious jealousy of my employer will be elements of danger to the success of any plan for our renewed happiness.

It is not a particularly pleasant path which opens before me. It is more like a steep mountain road. But at least, in attempting the ascent, I shall be obeying the urge of both my conscience and my heart. The outcome is in higher hands than mine.

WITH THE CLERK

THE presence of a carnival in our midst this week once more brings to mind that this is one form of the outdoor show business that finding the low increasingly hard to buy these days.

Probably no form of open air amusement has run into so many difficulties as the carnival. Yearly more and more cities clamp the lid on the traveling caravans.

Years ago the circuses were pointed to with shame by many because of the conditions that accompanied them. Gambling and graft were plentiful. The "green" lad with plenty "long green" was taken in for all he could stand. One will find several circuses out today that still are getting a considerable part of their revenue from gambling schemes and games. But they are small outfits and in the minority. A small circus played an Ohio city several weeks ago and the next day the newspaper of that city voiced the opinion that never before in its history was there so much wide open gambling on the circus lot.

And, because carnivals are principally made up of paddle wheels and other games of chance and because the element they carry along have so often proved undesirable the caravans are gradually being choked to death. Some say, as in the circus field, a big man will come along and force the carnivals to clean house. The bigger circuses now are in the circus business for the revenue they derive from entertainment and not from gambling.

Besides it seems ridiculous that when officials ban slot machines and open punch boards in our cities they let the carnival paddle wheels run wild. Here in Marion the carnivals are not in city police jurisdiction, the show grounds being just outside the city limits, there by throwing the burden to the sheriff's office.

Of those who like to keep an eye on the trend in theatricals the Marion theater situation will be interesting to watch with the coming of fall.

In past years theatrical activity here has been centered in one local concern operating three and some times four theaters. With the advent of the fall season four separate organizations will be in control.

The Marion Photoplay Co. will manage the Grand and the Marion, offering, probably, the same class of entertainment, with pictures and vaudeville at the Marion. The company recently gave up its lease on the neighborhood Oakland and Robin Masson of Celina has taken that house over. According to advices Masson plans many changes in the theater, with a new organ, new decorations, new seats, etc. This theater may be expected to open within a month.

With the opening of the new Palace in September another organization will come into the city. It is believed that vaudeville and pictures will be shown at the Palace as this is the policy used in the company's houses at Gary and Canton.

Then, of course, the same management will operate the Princess as has run this house for some time. No announcement has been made as to the future plans of the Orpheum which is under lease to the Marion Photoplay Co., but which has been closed for a year.

We might just as well stay on the subject of theatricals.

When the Grand Theater was secured by the seniors of Harding High School for their play, "I Miss Through," May 23 it was feared that the competition of the circus would hurt the school play attendance.

But it seems otherwise. Indications now point to the scholastic actors and actresses playing to packed houses for the matinees and night performances and giving the circus competition.

Tickets, it is said, are going like the proverbial "hotcakes." This is in a great measure due, we believe, to the work of Miss Lucille Foreman who is directing the play.

Miss Foreman has put a large piece of work for herself. Each year her plays have been so successful that Marion is beginning to expect her to surpass herself as the seasons go on. And, she usually does.

As Jawn McNulty would say down in Columbus our spies tell us the rehearsals are going over big and that the makers will give all of us a real surprise next Wednesday.
